

Annual CAUTHE Bill Faulkner Workshop For PhD Scholars and Early Career Researchers

All PhD Scholars and Early Career Researchers are invited to attend the annual Bill Faulkner Workshop held immediately prior to the CAUTHE Conference, on Monday February 11, 2013. The workshop is intended for tourism and hospitality PhD Scholars and Early Career Researchers (completed a PhD within the past five years) to offer research support and advice, as well as provide networking opportunities.

Why Should You Attend?

A key focus of the workshop will be on methodological perspectives in tourism and hospitality research, and will encourage participants to reflect on the question: What type of researcher am I? It will be an excellent opportunity to share experiences and get to know fellow tourism and hospitality scholars, as well as discuss your research with respected senior academics in your field.

This workshop will provide networking opportunities and academic mentorship from senior professors and researchers, including: Professors Richard Butler (University of Strathclyde, UK), David Airey (University of Surrey, UK), Alison Morrison (Victoria University, Aust.), and Bernard Lane (Sheffield Hallam University, UK)
